

Contents

Preface of the series editors	5
Acknowledgements	11
Introduction	13
1 Relative Chronology of Tripolye: Research History and State of the Art	17
1.1 Early typological models	18
1.2 Passek's general periodisation of Tripolye	19
1.2.1 Passek's contribution	19
1.2.2 Tripolye ABC: Passek's general chronological scale	21
1.3 Typo-chronological alterations to Passek's periodisation	26
1.3.1 Chronology and spatial diversity: Chernysh approach	27
1.4 From a monolithic Tripolye to a series of local-chronological groups	28
1.4.1 Zakharuk's framework: ethnicity and material culture	28
1.4.2 Tripolye: Zakharuk's model	30
1.4.3 The development of the method of singling out local variants	32
1.4.4 'Eastern' Tripolye	33
1.4.5 'Western' Tripolye	39
1.5 Conclusions	44
1.6 Research gaps and future tasks	48
2 Introduction to the mega-site region, research questions, sources	51
2.1 Research questions	52
2.2 Definition of the study region	52
2.3 Geography of the study region	55
2.3.1 Tectonics	56
2.3.2 Relief	58
2.3.3 Hydrology	59
2.3.4 Soils	65
2.3.5 Vegetation	65
2.3.6 Climate	68

2.4 Previous relative chronology of Tripolye sites	69
2.5 Sources for chronological constructions	72
2.5.1 Sites of the region	72
2.5.2 Pottery	78
2.5.2.1 Ceramics manufacturing technology	79
2.5.2.2 Capacity	81
2.5.2.3 Morphology. Typology of vessel shapes	82
2.5.2.4 Decoration	88
2.5.3 Radiocarbon dates	92
2.6 Research methods	93
2.6.1 Pottery analysis	93
2.6.2 Modelling of <sup>14</sup> C dates	94
2.6.3 Analysis of settlement patterns	94
3 Chronology on a local scale: the case of Talianki	95
3.1 General information	95
3.1.1 Discovery and excavations	95
3.1.2 Archaeomagnetic plans	95
3.1.3 Topography	96
3.2 Research questions	97
3.3 Data base	97
3.3.1 The archaeomagnetic plan	97
3.3.2 Excavations	98
3.4 Models of formation and development	99
3.5 <sup>14</sup>C dates of Talianki	101
3.5.1 Calculating dating probabilities of individual house areas	101
3.6 Talianki pottery	103
3.6.1 Methodological remarks	103
3.6.2 Testing Ryzhov's typology	105
3.6.3 Ceramic typology	107
3.6.3.1 Typology of shapes	107
3.6.3.2 Classification of decoration	108
3.6.3.3 'Signs' – separately-standing decoration components	109
3.6.4 Analyses of pottery	110
3.6.4.1 Combination of forms of decoration at the level of individual vessel units	110
3.6.4.2 Combination of shapes and forms of decoration at the level of house inventories	112
3.7 Interpretation of <sup>14</sup>C dates and pottery analysis	121
3.8 Conclusions	125
4 Chronology on a regional scale: sites of the Sinyukha river basin	127
4.1 Key sites: selection and overview	127
4.2 <sup>14</sup>C dates	136
4.2.1 The selection of samples	136
4.2.2 The analyses of the <sup>14</sup> C samples per site	137
4.2.3 Remarks on the methodology	151
4.2.4 The sequence of key sites	151

4.3 Regional analyses of pottery	158
4.3.1 The data base	158
4.3.2 Technology: Kitchenware versus other ware	158
4.3.2.1 Tripolye kitchenware from Sinyukha. 'Western Tripolye' pots	160
4.3.2.2 Early and 'Eastern' Tripolye kitchenware	164
4.3.2.3 Final Tripolye	166
4.3.2.4 Interpretation and consequences	167
4.3.3 Vessels' morphology	168
4.3.3.1 Testing the relative chronology by Ryzhov (1999)	168
4.3.3.2 Research questions	171
4.3.3.3 Measurements of ceramics	172
4.3.3.4 Morphological types of vessels	180
4.3.3.5 Summary	189
4.3.4 Capacity	190
4.4. Interpretation and conclusions: Tripolye development	197
5 Tripolye mega and smaller sites of the Sinyukha river basin	201
5.1 Commonly discussed narratives on the history of Tripolye sites between the Southern Bug and the Dnieper	201
5.2 The correlation of the sites' data set with the seven-phase development of Tripolye in the Sinyukha river basin	204
5.3 Exploring the threshold between small and large sites	206
5.4 Lifetime of individual Tripolye sites	211
5.4.1 Single site duration model	211
5.4.2 Discussion	213
5.4.3 Lifetime of a Tripolye site: conclusions and perspectives	215
5.5 Chalcolithic settlements in the Sinyukha basin: structural changes, periods of development, model of social organisation	217
5.5.1 Regional settlement dynamics	217
5.5.2 Settlement organisation	218
5.5.3 Pottery styles	223
5.5.4 'Special finds'	225
5.5.5 In search of a model of social organisation	231
5.5.6 Periodisation	235
5.6 Tripolye sites in time and space	236
5.6.1 Spatial distribution of settlements in diachronic perspective	236
5.6.2 Density of the sites	238
5.6.3 Comparison of the spatial distribution of Tripolye settlements and Ukrainian villages	240
5.6.4 The Sinyukha river basin throughout history	242
Conclusions	245
Резюме	251
References	259

Appendices	295
Appendix 1. List of Tripolye sites in the study region	296
Appendix 2. List of <sup>14</sup>C dates	314
Appendix 3. Percentages of kitchen and table wares in key-sites of the Sinyukha River Basin	332
Appendix 4. Capacity and dimensions of vessels from key sites in the Sinyukha River Basin	334
Appendix 5. List of Tripolye house models	346
Appendix 6. List of Tripolye sledge models	350
Appendix 7. Diachronic land use history in the 20 km catchment of Maidanetske from the Palaeolithic to modern times: periods, sites and cultural classifications	351
Appendix 8. Typology of vessel shapes	353
Appendix 9. Drawings of ceramic vessels in house inventories from key sites of the Sinyukha River Basin	359